Customer Reviews

This is a thoughtfully designed course. You listen to the CDs and follow along in the book. For the most part it is well done. It appears, however, that the text was not carefully edited by a native Spanish speaker so that occasional errors creep in. For example, in the story of the broken window, the text uses "etapa" for the story of a house. The correct word would be "piso" or "planta". Hence the student learns wrong vocabulary. In the same story, the text uses "pagar por" which is a common error among people who don't use Spanish. The verb "pagar" already means to "pay for" so you don't need the extra "por". The muchachos in the story end up paying FOR FOR the broken window and sounding like gringos who don't know Spanish grammar. Aside from occasional errors such as these, this text presents an enjoyable way to begin learning Spanish.

We were told by the sales person the internet portion of this curriculum was amazing, that our kids would want to play it all the time. The games are very simple and don't bring much benefit. The book is a joke. On the computer schedule it has review days, but there are no places in the book that has a list of the spanish words you are supposed to be studying with their english definitions. It makes review almost impossible. Also, we have spent tons of time learning about rats and pigs and other things that I doubt we will ever use in a conversation. If you would like to learn conversation Spanish, this is definitely not the one for you.
