Customer Reviews

Expertly written by award-winning children's playwright Kathleen McDonnell, Putting On A Show: Theater For Young People is a simple but effective guide to introducing young people to the joy of performing. An introduction and a theater terms glossary covers the basics of theater through the ages with a handful of tips, tricks, and techniques for setting up a production, but the bulk of Putting on a Show is devoted to four of the author's best-known plays for young people: Loon Boy, Ezzie's Emerald, The Seven Ravens and Foundlings, with complete play text, stage directions, photographs of previous performances and more. A superb tool for teachers as well as aspiring actors, directors, and playwrights, Putting On A Show features plays that are free to the public, cheap to produce, as well as an excellent resource for summer school and extracurricular programs especially.
